2. Child Protection Initiative

Fighting for Street Children

This initiative aims to ‘create and enable sustainable changes in the lives of children living on the streets’. We are currently working at seven railway stations across five states in India where we race to reach these children as soon as possible. Whether they are on trains or have just arrived at the stations, our early intervention can keep them safe and prevent them from slipping in to street life. Then we work with the child to find the best possible long-term future for them, whether that means being reunited with family or settled in a child care institute.

Project Impact- Our partner has worked at more than 35 railway stations and protected more than 100000 children. Railway Children has significantly contributed in the development of child protection Standard Operating Procedure by Indian Railways, as a result of which child protection issue is institutionalised within Indian Railways.
